-A Question of Party Loyalty.

WASHINGTON, February 26 .- [Special.]-Mr. Candler has a word to say about the doubts of his democracy expressed in the Athen Ban-ner recently. He also says that he will not be a candidate for governor, but here it is in his

"I don't know what's the matter with Larry Gantt. He and I have always been the best nds, and no other man did more gallant and effective work for me when I first ran for congress than he. Why he should impeach my democracy just at this time, when I have withdrawn from politics, and when my withdrawal was first published in his paper, I am at a loss to conjecture. I stand today on tariff reform and internal revenue precisely where I did eight years ago, when I had his most earnest support. I then, in my speeches, denounced both a tariff for protection and an excise tax as equally repugnant to the ancient democratic creed, and I pledged myself to oppose both, and I have done it. HIS RECORD APPEALED TO.

"When Mr. Gantt says that I regard the abolition of the liquor tax as paramount to a reduction of the tariff on the necessaries of life, he does me great injustice. No vote or utterance of mine warrants any such conclusion. I have spoken and voted for every bill to lower tariff taxes that has been before congress since I came here. No democrat, Mr. Carlisle not even excepted, has done more. I have not been squarely in line with Grover Cleveland in everything, perhaps-neither do I know many democrats who have. I and four-fifths of the democratic party favor the free, unlimited coinage of silver and its full legal tender. I am utterly opposed to the present civil service law, which operates to keep fifty thousand republicans in office to the exclusion of all democratic appli-cants. Mr. Cleveland favors it, and was beaten partly on that account. But these are not vital issues, and I do not presume to impeach his democracy because he and I do not agree on them.' On the contrary, I regard him as the strongest exponent of democracy on the conti-nent. We are as wide apart as the poles on the question of silver and civil service, but we are as one man on tariff taxation and the limitations of federal power, and these are the two great, ever-living issues that distinguish democracy from republicanism. Democrats may and do differ on miner points, but on these cardinal and vital issues there are divisions

"Why, I was born a democrat. I have been fighting the battles of democracy ever since I was a boy-for forty years. I was a democrat when it was a crime to be a democrat in Georgia-when many who now pose as the oracles of the party were mustering under the red flag of republicanism—and never before has it been even intimated that I had a chip ef the republican platform on my head, whatever that may mean. Such insinuation as that I am in sympathy with any one of the principles or methods of the republican party is gratuitous and unjust, and an insult to the intelligence of the constituency that has so often

"I am not a candidate for governor nor any thing else, and shall not be. I do not know who is Mr. Gantt's favorite, but if he will trot him out I will compare records with him as to length of service in the democratic party, loyalty to its flag and orthodoxy in its faith, and will cheerfully abide the verdict of the democracy of my own district, the state of Georgia.or the whole country."

NAT M'KAY'S CLAIMS. Nat McKay, the republican schemer and lobbyist, the same who carried the negro, Astwood, to dine with him at the Riggs house, had his claim reported favorably today. It is a claim for a half million for work alleged to have been done by his father, who constructed a number of vessels for the government during the war. The claim passed the last congress, but Mr. Cleveland vetoed it, as he could see no merit whatever in it. It is now looked upon with suspicion, but as McKay seems to be "in' with the republican leaders it is very apt to go through. He was sent to Europe sometime before the last election to get data on the condition of the English laboring classes, which, in pamphlet form, was distributed largely during the last campaign, and he modestly claims his sed Mr. Cleveland's defeat. At any rate, whether he was or not, it seems he is to be rewarded with a half millian for his work. McKay is hand-in-glove with the swarm of subsidy hunters that are infesting the capital.

THE DUDLEY APPOINTMENT. Senator Colquitt said today that he thought it very probable he would be able to defeat th confirmation of the black Dudley as postmaster at Americus. This is, however, hardly possi-ble. The senator will be able to hold it up for a few months, if he makes much of an effort but as Harrison and Clarkson are determined that Dudley shall be postmaster at Americus, the nomination is quite certain to be confirmed. It is understood Senator Sherman will probably vote with the democrats against confirmation, but it will take about four more republican votes to kill it. These, ost impossible to get.

Judge Crisp and others will go before the senate committee on postoffices to enter protests when the case con

CHANDLER'S LITTLE PETITION.

Alleged Outrages Perpetrated in Arkansas Eighteen Months Ago. WASHINGTON, February 26.—Mr. Chandler presented a petition from Union county, Arkansas, representing that at the state election there in September, 1888, a systematic reign of terror prevailed; that armed and reckless mobs paraded the county, night and day, terrorizing the whites and shooting and whipying colored voters; that schools and churches had been de-moralized, and ballot boxes carried off, and asking for the protection guaranteed by the constitution.

asking for the protection guaranteed by the constitution.

CHANDLER INTERRUPTED.
Mr. Harris asked Mr. Chandler whether the statement which he was making was such a "brief statement" as the rule contemplated in the presentation of petitions, and added that it was in direct violation of the rule.
Mr. Chandler replied that he understood the rule and how the rule was construed. He was not reading a petition, but was reading from as condensed a statement of it as he could make in justice to the petitioners.
Mr. Harris desired the ruling of the chair, and rule of the provides that every petition.

Mr. Hoar remarked that Mr. Chandler had said that his remark was as brief and compact as he could make it, and added that the rule left the matter entirely to the discretion of the sensetors.

Mr. Berry asked Mr. Chandler whether he had himself prepared the statement he was making, or whether somebody else had done

Mr. Chandler replied that he had not writ ten it himself.

Mr. Berry thought he had collected it himself.

CHANDLER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Chandler-It is a statement which I made on my own responsibility of the substance of this petition. It was prepared by myself. I don't wish to violate the rules of the senate. I am only sorry that the senator from Tennessee should not have taken occasion to comment en the practice of making full statements on some other petition than one which concerned the rights of citizens.

A REPUBLICAN'S INDORSEMENT Of a Democrat who Submitted Quietly to Reed's Ruling.

Washington, February 26.—Immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. Rowell, of Illinois, called up the contested election case of Atkinson vs. Pendleton from the first district of West Virginia. It was agreed that a six hours' debate should be allowed, after which the previous question is to be considered as ordered.

trict of West Virginia. It was agreed that a six hours' debate should be allowed, after which the previous question is to be considered as ordered.

The case of the contestant was championed by Mr. Rowell, and Mr. Pendleton's claims were maintained by Mr. O'Ferrall, of Virginia. Mr. Rowell was seconded by Mr. Lacey, of Iowa, and Mr. O'Ferrall by Mr. Wilson, of Missouri. All the speeches were confined to an analysis of the evidence, and were dry and uninteresting. The only life infused into the debate was contributed by Mr. Greenhalge, of Massachusetts, who, while addressing himself to the evidence, did with so much quiet sarcasm as to elicit laughter and applause from both sides of the house. His quiet reference to the "extreme leniency with which the speaker treats the other side of the house," was thoroughly enjoyed, and his humorous dissection of the minority report highly entertained the house. In conclusion, he said:

While I do not believe that the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. Pendleton) was duly elected to the seat he occupies, I take pleasure in saying, at least, that not a page of this record (alluding to the record in the case) is stained by any improper conduct on his part; and I take greater pleasure in saying that his conduct while in this house has been that of the dignity of manhood and of courtesy. I say that it is a great pleasure if the bitterness of political warfare can be ameliorated by finding our enemies men we have to contest with—men of heroic and chivalric mold. Under these chrounstances, we have the right to love our enemies, and I thank our friend that he has, at least, permitted me to know the fierce joy which warriors feel in foemen worthy of their steel, when, the other day, under our very eyes, we saw a number of gentlemen on that side undergoing the horrible transformation afficted on the unhappy followers of Ulysses by the art of Circe. I am glad to say that one of the notable exceptions of that horrid route was the gentleman from West Virginia. No billingsgate polluted hi

THE BILLIARD TOURNAMENT. George Slosson Defeats Ives, the "Boy Won-der."

New York, February 26.—The ninth game in the Balke line billiard tournament was played in Chickering hall this evening before a large audience. The stage was filled with ladies and gentlemen in evening dress and each skillful play of the contestants was a signal for generous applause. The game was between Frank C. Ives, of Chicago, "the boy wonder," and George F. Slosson. The referee was John F. Donovan, of St. Louis. Slosson won in the forty-ninth inning, score 500 to 448. Slosson's average 26 6-10, Ives 23 11-19. Highest runs—Slosson 136, 77, 66; Ives 98, 84, 81. Time of game two hours and thirty-nine minutes.

Destruction of Property and Loss of Life in Ohio, Tennessee and Arkansaw.

CINCINNATI, February 26 .-- All the element of a disastrous flood in the Ohio river seem to be now present. The continuous wet weather has saturated the earth so that the excessive rainfalls of the past three or four days have all found their outlet in tributaries of the river Along the entire valley of the Ohio the rainfall has been enormous. From the Kentucky side the Big Sandy river comes with a boom almost unparalleled, while the Kanawa river, further up, also pours out its swelling volume. The Sciota, Hocking, Muskingum, in Ohio, as well as the two Miamas, keep the river bed full, while a rise is coming down from the headwa-

At Mason City, Ia., a blizzard set in yesterday, covering the entire northern portion of the state. The thermometer marks zero, and all trains are delayed.

At Cambridge City, Ind., a cloudburst on Monday night caused Martendale creek, near that place, to rise so quickly that a woman and three children of the Hall family were drowned. They belonged to a party of gypsies encamped near the stream. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

At Carbondale, Ill.—Monday night, the place was visited by the heaviest rainfall that has occurred for the last fifteen years. It rained incessantly until noon yesterday. The low lands are inundated, and this will interfere with railroad travel. A tornado at Bainbridge, one hundred miles east, completely demoished the residence of J. Smyder. There were several immates in the dwelling, and all were injured, but none fatally. Several buildings were blown from their foundations and badly damaged.

Water in Scioto river, at Columbus, O., did not reach the point of damage until 2 o'clock this morning, when the river broke into the canal below the city, and the water covered a vast expanse of low lands. The principal damage will be to the banks of the Columbus feeder of the Ohio canal. Some of the manufacturers along the river were temporarily disabled by water pouring in on the machinery, but no extensive damage has been reported.

Considerable embarrassment was caused at an early hour by the breaking of the natural gas pipe, where it crosses Big Walnut creek. The supply had to be shut off until repairs are made. Brownsville, Tenn., six miles northeast of Memphis, on the Louisville and Nashville road, was struck by a cyclone at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Half of the houses of the town were unroofed and many materially damaged, while several buildings are in a total state of destruction. A cotton compress was unroofed. The Northern Methodist church was demolished. A brick mill was unroofed. It next struck the handsome building of the Brownsville Savings bank. The roof was picked off and fell to the street with a tremendons crash. It next struck the handsome building of the Brownsville Savings bank. The roof was picked off and fell to the street with a tremendous crash. Three squares of buildings across the street, just north of the bank, were unroofed, with the exception of the house of J. B. Phillips & Cox. Only one residence is reported as having been damaged—that of Mrs. S. A. Baines, on Washington street. Just following the cyclone came a great flood of rain that completely drenched the goods in the compresses. The loss aggregates $50,000. The only loss of life is that of a woman about three miles from Brownesville, who was three miles from Brownesville, who was struck by a falling tree and instantly killed. Her two children were severely injured.

THE OHIO RISING. There is already disturbance of river navigation, as steamers cannot pass under the suspension bridge. The steamer Sherlock, for New Orleans, is compelled to defer her departure until the water falls, on that account. At Hamilton, Ohio, the Big Miami was higher last night than it has been for ten years. Water had entered the Straub house, one the principal hotels, and many houses were submerged in part. IN ARKANSAS AND TENNESSEE.

MEMPHIS, February 26.—A windstorm of cyclonic proportion, accompanied by hail and rain, swept over this section of country yesterday, doing an immense amount of damage to property and causing the loss of at least one life. The storm in Memphis was severe, but no material damage was done. Brownsville, Tennessee, fifty-six miles northeast of this city was the worst sufferer so far reported. The storm struck the town while its inhabitants slept, and had done its terrible work before the real situation was realized.

It came from a northeasterly direction and IN ARKANSAS AND TENNESSEE.

The business houses that suffered most are as follows: King's hardware store, Mann's opera house, Gause's photograph gallery. Brewer's grocery store, Hotchkiss & Lyle, dry goods; Scotts & Lord, Glass drug store, Fannin & Themas's grocery, Winston & Wilder's dry goods and the cotton compress. The Jewish synagogue, Methodist church, Baptist female college and courthouse were also unroofed and otherwise damaged.

A LOSS OF LIFE.

A LOSS OF LIFE. The only life reported lost is that of Mrs. James Cooper, wife of an engineer. A tree fell across the house, crushing it in, killing her and badly injuring two of her children. At Marianna, Ark., the new Christian church was completely demolished, Lesser's cotton shed was blown away, and the roofs of several other buildings were lifted off. About three milas west of town a negro schoolhouse, with sixty-five children in it, was blown from its foundation, but no one was hurt.

Hot Springs old observatory, which has stood for several years on the sumit of Hot Springs mountain, and from whose top thousands of visitors have viewed the surrounding country, was levelled to the ground by the gale. The storm played havoc with the entire country between Hot Springs and Oauchita river.

Many farm houses were torn to atoms, and the path of the storm is one mass of wrecked timber. Large trees were uprooted, and in many places the roads are completely blockaded by fallen timber. It is not yet known whether any lives were lost, but that there were, is more than probable, owing to the destruction of so many farm houses.

PHOENIX, Arizona, February 26.—News from the disaster reaches here slowly. The company camp, three miles below the lower dam, contained about 125 people two weeks ago, and there were probably that many in it at the time of the disaster, and fears are entertained for their lives. A courier, who has arrived from near there, says he was awakened at about 2 o'clock in the morning by the shrieks of people. The wave was fifty feet high when he first saw it, and was sparkling in the dark ness with millions of phosphorescent eyes, and with a terrible roar almost instantly swept away the tents and buildings. The canyon was full of cotton wood trees which were swept away. The lower dam, a structure 240 feet long and sixty feet above bed rock, with thirty feet above the surface, was swept away. A prospector who was camping on a bluff four miles below, says the sight from where he stood was terrible in the extreme. At a narrow place just below them, where the canyon contracts to about one-fourth of its width, between perpendicular rocks, several hundred feet high, the waters leaped up a hundred feet high with a fearful crash and a roar, and rushed through the narrow gorge like lightning, cleaning out the last vestige of everything movable, leaving the bare, hard rock.

THE MISSISSIPPI RISING.

And Danger Imminent of Great Floods Below Vicksburg.

NEW ORLEANS, February 26 .- [Special.]-The Mississippi river is in a threatening condition from Vicksburg down, and it is scarcely possible to hold the levees against it. The river has, during the present month, without any apparent reason for it, risen higher than for years past. For ten days the planters have been fighting it with some success, but the severe wind storm which has prevailed has resulted in three crevasses with more promised, THE CREVASSES REPORTED.

The crevasses are below the city, one at New Texas, on the New Orleans side of the river, about twenty miles below; another at Billere, on the west bank, ten miles below the city, and the third thirty miles above at Hahnville. In all cases the planters are receiving valuable assistance from the railroads which would be injured in case the crevasses remain open long. The high southerly winds wn the water up against the levees, and from New Orleans down it is within six inches of their tops. On Bayou Lafourche, a branch of the Mississippi, the water is higher than the levees, and is pouring over them into the cane fields.

PATROLLING THE RIVER BANK. The police force of New Orleans patrolled the levee front all last night and today, and men were kept in readiness to repair all breaks and strengthen all weak spots. It is thought that the immediate danger will disappear when the present high wind goes down, but the levees will be in danger for some weeks yet. In nearly all the parishes guards have ed to patrol them night and day, and special appropriations made for repairs and

The Electric Light Plant Damaged by the Lightning.

MARIETTA, Ga., February 26.—[Special.]— Our citizens were considerably aroused by the storm last night. The elements were so charged with electricity that the most vivid lightning, with deafening peals of thunder, reigned supreme for some time. The city's electric lights were put out and some damage done to the plant. At the central office of the telephone exchange considerable damage was done, as all connections were burnt out, causing the alarm of fire to be given, and bringing out the fire department, but prompt action on part of the operator, put out the fire before the department arrived. The house of Mrs. A. C. Dobbs, on Cherokee street, was struck by a bolt of lightning, tearing away a portion of one chimney, and also tearing quite a hole in the roof. The inmates were not hurt, but somewhat frightened. The rainfall was the heaviest experienced here for a long time. charged with electricity that the most vivid

At midnight Hawes was talking to the guard, and talking of his death, which the law had decreed for the morrow. He was then sit-ting upon his bunk, in his sleeping apparel. "Then, if you have thought of it," said Hawes, "you must have thought that you had rather be in your place than in mine."

"And why not?" said the guard, closing the book and glancing through the bars at Hawes. "Why do you ask?"

"Why? I'll tell you why. On the next day I have to die, and you—why, you don't know when you will die. Have you ever thought of that, Lem? Here you are with an uncertain life. Here I am with a certain life. You may die before day, and you may live a hundred years, if you don't murder some one, while I must die Friday."

As the day for his death draws near, Hawes becomes calmer and easier than he has been for several weeks. He has abandoned all hopes of a prolongation of life, and accepts his fate with an ease that is graceful. Sunday he was sullen and morose, just as he has been since Wyly was released. His words were short and rough, and to all he was anything but pleasant. On Monday, however, a change seemed to come over him and a pleasant smile took the place of the ugly frown. change seemed to come over him and a pleasant smile took the place of the ugly frown.

Yesterday Hawes's heavy beard disappeared before the keen blade of a barber. For years Hawes has worn a mustache only, and after his arrest he was given a shave two or three times a week. This was continued until he was tried and convicted. Then the sheriff deemed it advisable to cut off the luxury. Since then Hawes's beard has been growing, and Wednesday morning, when he arose from his bed, it was an ugly tangled mess, six inches long. Hawes has always had an idea that beard did not become him, and frequently has asked the sherhas always had an idea that beard did not beeome him, and frequently has asked the sheriff for a barber. Sheriff Smith, however, has not seen fit to grant the request until now.

"Dick, do you still want a shave?"
Hawes's face indicated his desire for one, and when he had made his answer, the sheriff

"Well, you shall have one." An hour or two later the sheriff entered the cell with a barber. The barber carried a mug, brush and strap in his hand, and a keen edged razor in his pocket. The cell door was opened, and, followed by the sheriff, the tonsorial artist walked in. the sheriff, the tonsorial artist walked in. Hawes met them with a pleasant greeting, and dropping into a chair threw his head back with an ease and grace which showed that he had not forgotten the time when his shaves cost him fifteen cents each and the state of Alawhen the barber washed the face clean with the damp end of a clean towel, a sponge saturated with bay rum was run over it, and powder was applied. Hawes rubbed his hand over his face, and glanced around the cell, as though looking for a mirror. The barber appeared to divine his thoughts and bending over his case,

"Here's a glass."
Hawe took the mirror and looked at him-Hawar took the mirror and looked at himself carefully. He held it first on one side and then the other, each time turning his face so that he could see it. The inspection seemed to please him, for it brought a smile to his face, and handing the mirror back, he asked:

"How does that look, Joe?"

The shave had made a greater change in Hawes's appearance than one could imagine. He looks younger, stouter and healthier than ever before in his life. His face is full and round, and his cheeks hang down. Since being jailed, Hawes has fleshened beyond imagination and today will weigh nearly 200 magination, and today will weigh nearly 200 pounds. The flesh, of course, is soft, but it adds much to the appearance, and as he stands upon that gallows tomorrow, he will be a finer looking man than he was the day he and Emma Pettis ran away, or on the eve that he and Miss Steav were married. Miss Story were married.

Mrs. Jim Howes and Willie Hawes, son of the condemned man, came down from Atlanta today, and were met at the union depot by Mr. Hawes. The visit is not generally known, and no one appears to know why Tonight, however, I have been told a story that has some interesting features about it. Before Hawes's sentence, it is said that he ex-pressed the greatest aversion constantly to seeing his son, saying:

"I had rather see that boy dead and under the ground than to have him come here and see me in jail."

the ground than to have him come here and see me in jail."

Within the past few days, however, he has been talking constantly about the boy, but has refused to request his presence. The doomed man's talk has gone to Sheriff Smith's heart, just as every one of Hawes's appeals has, and it is said that he suggested to Jim Hawes the presence of the boy. "For," says a friend of the sheriff, "suppose one of his last requests should be to see that boy."

Mr. Jim Hawes is here and Sheriff Smith is especially kind to him.

Every detail of the execution is arranged, and correspondents for New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans and Philadelphia papers are here. Chief Deputy Tom Smith, of the sheriff's office, purchased the rope today, which will be used in the execution of Hawes. It is a three-quarter inch grass rope, and is fifteen feet long.

HE KILLED A POLICEMAN. secause the Officer Compelled Him to move a Banana Peel. JACKSONVILLE, Fla., February 26.-Tonight an unknown negro bought some bananas in a fruit store on Hay street. He ate one and threw the peel on the floor. The proprietor told him to pick it up but he refused and the former then called Policeman C. J. Payne, at whose command the negro removed the peel, and the officer went out. The negro followed and called to him. The officer turned as the negro approached and the latter asked the number of the policeman's badge. The officer threw his coat open and exposed it, when the negro fired three shots, the first one striking the badge and the other two making wounds in the officer's head and chest, killing him instantly. The murderer escaped. The Kirkpatrick Tragedy. RALEIGH, N. C., February 26.—[Special.]— Later news today regarding the shooting of Special Revenue Agent Kirkpatrick, near Hillsboro, is that he is dangerously hurt, over twenty shot having struck him. It was one of

BALFOUR'S BAIT

Which the Parnellites Will Not Nibble-His

LONDON, February 26.—Balfour is engaged in preparing a bill to give Ireland a system of local self-government, or home rule. His scheme is said to be based on the idea of treatng the Irish, as to a local government, just as the English and Scotch are treated in regard to the same subject. As any proposition to do this would make the tories a ho not believed that this bill will be more than a pretense and juggle.

SIR CHARLES'S SPEECH. Sir Charles Russell, speaking at Cambridge, declared that Mr. Parnell and his colleagues had been acquitted of every charge affecting their personal or political honor; that nothing had been found against the mass of their countrymen. The Irish movement, he said, had ecomplished its aims with far less crime than had been attached to any previous political agitation of equal importance. That crime attended it was not due to the organizers, but to reckless and irresponsible persons who rang like a fringe on every popular movement.

THE FRIGHTFUL CRIME.

Upon arriving at the scene a ghastly picture was presented. There upon her bed lay a sweet and pretty maid of nine summers with her throat cut from one ear to the other, and cold and still in death. Then the crowd grew frantic with rage, and longed to get a glimpse of the guilty party.

The evidence pointed to one Brown Washington, and immediately the crowd started for his home and found him there. After several hours of questioning, the following statement was gleaned:

On last Thursday Brown Washington secre ted himself in a gully near the place where this girl had to pass in going and coming from school, and then waited for his victim. When she got near he ran after her, calling her to stop, telling her that he didn't intend hurting her. She continued her flight, and on reaching her home was completely out of breath. When she recovered from her fright she told the above story. But her parents thinking it of no consequence, said nothing of it until on Tuesday the girl was found to be missing, being absent from school all day where she was thought to be. Her parents becoming alarmed, instituted a search for her, and found her Tuesday night cold and stiff, with evidence of the terrible crime.

THE BEGINNING OF THE ROW. The facts are about as follows: Sunday evening, about dusk, the May and Brown boys had a quarrel, and May told them that he would kill them that night, or if he failed to kill them that night, he would meet them at the lot early next morning and kill them. Be-tween 7 and 8 o'clock at night May went to the house of Mrs. Brown and called for the boys to come out, that he was going to kill them, cursing and abusing them.

THE KILLING TAKES PLACE. Finally the boys went out to try to reason with him, and try to keep down any trouble, when May, who was armed with a double-barrel shotgun, shot Henry Brown, the load taking effect in the light lung, killing him instantly. There were several other shots fired, with above results. May is still at large. No arrests have been made ghastly and highly sensational discovery was made at the fish pond of Mr. A. A. Wright, this morning. Since Sunday last Mr. Wright has noticed a white object out in the pond among some pond lilies, bet paid no attention to it, as papers and paper bags are frequently thrown into the pond by people who bring food for the fish. The high wind and heavy rain of last night dislodged the object from the lilies, and it was floated within a few feet of the bank.

On going to the pond this morning Mr. Wright was surprised to find, not a piece of range but a deed below. The discovery score

Wright was surprised to find, not a piece of paper, but a dead baby. The discovery soon attracted a large crowd to the spot, who, after looking on the innocent little one that had been so ruthlessly murdered, turned away, sick at the sight.

Coroner Latta was sent for, and while waiting for his arrival a more careful examination was made by some men present. The jury returned a verdict that the body there before them was that of a female white child aged ten days, and that its death resulted from drowning by some party or parties unknown to them.

The affair has created a great sensation and the public are clamorous for a thorough inuestigation of the matter.

Tonight the radiant Mrs. Hamilton appeared in a box at the theater in company with a stranger who had engaged the box, and who was probably not acquainted with the local laws. Manager DeGive sent her word by an usher that if she entered his house she must enter the gallery, where women of her class were expected to sit. The police, having been notified, were on the watch to arrest the pair, but the man slipped out alone and made his escape at the end of the first act. Mrs. Hamilton also got out.

ELI GETS THERE.

A FAMOUS HUMORIST PAYS A VISIT TO ATLANTA.

Eli Perkins, Who Is Known as a Humoris and Lecturer Everywhere, Tells Some Stories-His Lecture Tour.

Eli Perkins, another lecturer, humorist, reached Atlanta yesterday morning and spent the day here. He came from Athens, where he lectured Tuesday night, and last evening he left for Birmingham.

Perkins, who was baptized Melville D., and whose surname is Landon, is a man of striking personality. This personality was decidedly heightened yesterday by a heavy fur-lined overcoat, which he carried about with him. "What's it for? "Why to wear, to be sure—but not in this climate," was his reply to an inquiry. "That you may not think me an idiot I'll confide in you that just a week ago I lectured where I had to tramp through the snow to get to the hall. That was up in Vermont-rather different here I, see. 'I like colleges," said Mr. Perkins-everybody forgets that he has any other name. "I had a big audience at Athens, as I had the colleges at Spartanburg, Newberry Greenville. Eli is a man apparently forty years old. He says he's older, but you won't believe it when you see him. He is a blonde, with a rosy, beautiful complexion, and a specially good feature is his fine set of teeth. "How do you keep them so white?" he was

"Oh, that is the natural way they have." "But don't your diet have something to do with their whiteness?' "Oh, no. I eat everything-meat, fruit anything that comes along."

"Then you do nothing to keep them white?"

"No, nothing-except-well (meditatively) I do sometimes put them in soft water nights."

That's one of Eli's jokes. He swore "by all the gods" that it was original. But-well, original jokes are scarce.

He seemed to be especially interested in the postoffice fight at Athens. "Larry Gantt hasn't eaten a thing since Da vis was appointed," he said, "and his friends are greatly alarmed about him. I asked an old negro about Davis this morning, and he We cullud folks looks up ter him, boss and goes ter him for advice, an' de white folks hez great respect for Mistah Davis, too, but darkies make about 8,000,000 bales of cotton for dis yer nation, that we might have one-tenth of a postofice. It duz, sure.'" Perkins puts M. Quad, of the Detroit Free Press, at the head of the true humorists.

"He is a wonderful fellow," he said, "and the beauty of his humor is that it is all so true to the nature. His Brother Gardner was a sure-enough character. Lewis heard him preach, and caught the dialect. Dialect wins every time. Did it ever strike you that Dickens was the first English writer to use dialogue and dialect? Well, he was. Lewis's Lime Kiln Club is so true to nature that half the people in Detroit believe there is such a club." Eli "gets there" with both feet when it comes to telling good stories. He says he will tell more to an Atlanta audience some time soon.

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., February 26 .-CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., February 26.—[Special.]—The most enthusiastic and the largest crowd that has assembled in the courthouse at this place for years, gathered here to hear the grand speech of Hon. Thomas E. Watson. He spoke for an hour to a house packed as full as could be, and the windows and doors were crowded for many feet away, listening to the silver-tongued orator, who was applauded constantly by his many friends. It was a powerful speech upon the most important live issues of the day, and was gladly received by our people. Mr. Watson is making friends rapidly, and is climbing the ladder of fame at a rapid rate. His speech was the topic of the day as being the best heard here for years.

DON'T DO IT.

From the "Medical Review." "Upon the first symptoms of Liver Complaint the misguided sufferer applies blue pill, calomel and other mineral poisons, in the delusive hope of obtaining relief, whereas these powerful purgatives but aggravate the disease and debilitate the constitution. Dr. Tutt has had the courage to ignore this killing practice of the old school. His remedies, drawn from the vegetable kingdom, are almost miraculous in renovating the broken down body. The letters of cured patients in the Doctor's possession are a tribute of gratitude to his genius and skill which but few can exhibit. His Liver Pills are sent all over the world. They can be found in every town and hamlet in the United States."

Several camps have been established between Woodbury and LaGrange, on this line, with a large force of hands and about 180 This force is busily engaged in moving dirt, and will not be long in having the road ready for ties and rails. This week a camp will be established at Mountville, and work will begin there. The trouble about will begin there. The trouble about the right of way opposite Greenville has been about settled, and the few remaining land owners will soon yield and let the road proceed without bother. On Saturday last Messrs. A Negré Driver Slashes a Horse Drover Yes terday. For some time there has been trouble among the horse drovers and negro drivers, whose employers board their horses at Jones &

Rosser's stables.

Several fights have occurred, the drivers getting the worst of it. Among those who board horses there are Drs. W. F. Westmoreland, and their driver, H. C. Wheat, better known Within a month the Columbus Southern, it is stated authoritatively, will be running trains into Albany. There was some delay as "Mack" Wheat, has had charge of them. Yesterday morning Dr. Westmoreland ordered because of the heavy work required between Dawson and Richland, and there was an unhis horse for a drive, and found that the horse was suffering for want of water.

When he returned he told Mack that the horse had not been watered, and the latter got after Jim, another negro, who occasionally assists him, for not watering the horse. Jim said he had been watered, and a dispute arose.

Mack says that a drover named Simmons, came up and called him a liar, and took Jim's part. From that more words followed, and Simmons struck him several times with a buggy whip.

Another driver, Samuel H. Cheek, came out, and Mack says struck him several blows and drew a pistol on him, when Mack drew his knife, and knocking up the pistol stabbed Cheek on the left side, near the spine, inflicting a serious wound.

The parties were all arrested, but released under bond. Cheek was taken to his home on Mitchell street, where his wound was dressed, and last night his condition was such that his friends asked that Wheat be re-arrested and held to await the result of his injuries.

So far as could be learned Mack's story was about the correct statement af the affair. He has been with Dr. Westmoreland for about eight years, and they have always found him honest and trustworthy.

It is thought that Cheek will soon recover from his wound, which was not very deep, and the knife did not penetrate any vital part. Wheat has an ugly gash on the back of his head, and was pretty badly beaten up.

A loud report followed and the woman yelled:

"Oh, I,m shot," Dr. Hammond ran to her and found that the ball had struck her in the abdomen, but had just touched the skin and had turned aside. It was found imbedded in her clothing The woman was unhurt, but a large crowd collected and there was a good deal of excite-ment for a while. She went home but re-turned again after she had got over her fright. The shooting was purely accidental, and luckily no harm was done.

During the morning he made an engagement to go driving on the beach at noon with Mr. J.

H. Whitmire, head clerk at the store in which the dead man was interested. When the time arrived the whisky had so far gained control of Mr. Gowen that he forgot his engagement, and it was not filled.

During the afternoon Mr. Gowen seemed to sober up, and he willingly granted his wife's request that he go with her to her brother's Mr. J. B. Wright's. On the way Mr. Gowen talked pleasantly of the occurrences of every day life. He was more than usually affectionate toward his wife. Unless that could be taken as a sign, Mr. Gowen gave no intimation of the thoughts which he was then harboring. Not until Mr. Wright's gate was reached was there any evidence given that all was not right with Mr. Gowen.

There some friends were met who asked Mr. Gowen why he had not filled his engagement with Mr. Whitmire. Mr. Gowen denied having made the engagement, and talked in a wandering and excited way, which alarmed his wife and those who heard him. Mrs. Gowen ran around to the back of her brother's house. She did not go in, however, but returned to her lord.

She did not go in, however, but returned to her home.

Thinking that his wife was safe at her brother's, Mr. Gowen also returned to his own home. Going to his room Mr. Gowen was heard to open his trunk and close it. Almost immediately he returned to the hall, calling Mr. Whitmire from his room and calling his son to him. Advancing to the front door to meet the boy, Mr. Gowen said to his son: "My boy, take care of mamma, I won't be here tonight."

"Without saying another word Mr. Gowen put a pistol to his head and fired. The ball went in the right temple and came out just

Mr. Whitmire and Mr. Gowen's son saw the pistol and heard the shot, but before they could do anything life had left the wounded man. The statements before the coroner's jury went to show that Mr. Gowen's death was censed by liguor and family troubles. The

Mr. Colley in Ohio.

Washington, Ga., February 26.—[Special.]
Mr. John D. Colley, one of the editors of the semi-weekly paper published here, has been in Ohio for some days with Mr. Glessner, engaged in an effort to draw emigration to this county. Mr. Colley is an enterprising young man, and it is hoped his project will do the county good. He writes home with enthusiasm of what he sees.

The Burning of a Barn. The Burning of a Barn.

Columbus, Ga., February 26.—[Special.]—

Mrs. A. A. Lane, who lives about twelve miles from Columbus, in Russell county, Ala., had the misfortune to lose her barn and stables by fire. The barn contained several hundred bushels of corn. A fine mule was burned with the stables.

Deposited with the Lowry Banking Co., of Atl ta, Ga., which I will promptly pay to any one w will disprove any of the following statements:

This means fust as it reads. The following persons are all reliable. I have hundreds of other statements similar to these in my office:
Colonel Wash Roach, attorney-at-law, 132
Broughton street, Savanuah, Ga., says that he has for five years suffered with severe stricture and ulceration of the rectum. After having tried many of the most eminent physicians in Georgia, and having traveled nearly all over the country in search of health, I found no relief until I put myself under Dr. W. J. Tucker, and in the short space of three moths I find myself nearly well.

Mrs. H. P. Stevens, an estimable lady of Waycross, Ga., says: Five years ago I was given up to die by the best physicians of southeast, Georgia, all of whom said I could not live but a few weeks. As the last resot I determined to try Dr. W. J. Tucker, of Atlanta, Ga. In less than three months the doctor had me restored to health. I am confident I would have died had it not been for his marvelous skill.

W. H. Phillips, Simsboro, La., says: I have suffered for ten years with liver disease and chronic diarrhoea, and after being treated by Dr. W. J. Tucker a very short time am almost entirely well.

Dr. Fred B. Palmer, Atlanta, Ga., one of the W. J. Tucker a very short time am almost entirely well.

Dr. Fred B. Palmer, Atlanta, Ga., one of the best known and most popular druggists of Georgia, and also himself a physician, suffered for many years with piles, was cured by Dr. W. J. Tucker and remains perfectly well.

Mrs. J. F. Kinsey, Camak, Ga.: Spinal disease, nervous prostration and diseases peculiar to her sex, coulined to her bed, helpless for many months, treated by Dr. W. J. Tucker three or four years ago, and since that time has been able to attend to her household duties.

Mrs. J. H. Seme, Dawson, Ga., says: I have experienced the most remarkable, benefit from Dr. W. J. Tucker's treatment, gained fifteen or twenty pounds in the last few months. I advise all suffering ladies to give him a trial.

Hon. E. E. Foy, Egypt, Ga., says as suffered for many years with a chronic malady, was cured by Dr. W. J. Tucker three years ago, and loses no opportunity to tell the afflicted of Dr. Tucker's skill-

The above statements are all trile, no sane man would publish them if they were not, and if you do not besatisfy yourself. I treat successfully chronic diseases and weaknesses of both sexes. I treat all who have dealings with me honestly and conscientiously. I am responsible for what I say and do professionally, financially and individually. If you are afflicted write to me or call and you shall have an honest opinion.

Treating Patients by Correspondence. It is rarely necessary for me to see my patients. Many patients can be better treated that way than by meeting the physician direct. Patients should always give age, sex, married or single, present and former weight (as near as possible) and occupation. CTATE OF GEORGIA, COUNTY OF FULTON—
To the Superior Court of said county: The petition of George W. Sciple, Charles E. Sciple, H. S. Johnson, R. A. Hemphill, G. H. Tanner, John S. Clark, George W. McCarty, Henry Oilver, Austin H. Green, H. H. Cabiness, Joe F. Gatins, R. M. Farror, R. L. Robinson, E. P. Black, Lawson Stapleton, J. L. Beattie, R. O. Campbell, Thomas J. Spriggs, H. M. Patterson, Mike M. Blount, John F. Bates, A. Steiner, J. H. Nunnally and Lewis W. Thomas shows that on November 13, 1889, your honor being disqualified, his honor, Richard H. Clark, judge of che superior courts of the Stone Mountain circuit, presiding, passed an order making petitioners, ther associates and successors, a body corporate and politic under the name and style of the Young Men's Real Estate Investment Company, and granted to petitioners all the powers of a corporation under and by virtue of section 1676 of the code of Georgia, and laws in relation thereto.

Under this order petitioners were allowed a cani-1676 of the code of Georgia, and laws in relation thereto.

Under this order petitioners were allowed a capital stock of $290,000, divided into 2,000 shares of $100 cach, payable in forty months at $2.50 per share per month with the privilege of increasing said capital stock to any amount by a vote of a majority of the stockholders.

Petitioners desire to change said capital stock from $200,000 to $50,000; the amount of each share from $100 to $50; the number of said shares from 2,000 to 1,000; the time in which said capital stock is to be paid in from forty months to twenty-five months; the amount to be paid in per month on each share from $2,00 to $2.0 to $2.

And to strike from said original petition the following: "Inless changed by a majority vote of the stockholders, with the privilege of increasing said capitol stock to any amount, from time to time by a majority vote of the stockholders, "and subsitute therefor the following:

Said capital stock and the mode, manner and ing said capitol stock to any amount, from time to time by a majority vote of the stockholders," and substitute therefor the following:

Said capital stock and the mode, manner and time in which it is said to be paid in, can be increased at any time, to any amount, by a majority vote of the stock subscribed.

The object of said company is mutual gain and profit to its stockholders, by dealing in real estate, personal property of all kinds, including investment securities.

The particular business said company proposes te engage in, or carry on, is the buying and selling of vacant and improved real estate, and all kinds of personal property, including all kinds of investment securities for a profit.

If necessary they desire to issue bonds, borrow money, and have full power to do any and all things necessary to improve and make more valuable their property. The amount of capital stock to be employed by said company actually paid in, is fifty thousand dollars, and the place of doing business and principal office of said company is to be in the city of Atlanta. Fulton county, but they desire the privilege of having offices and doing business elsewhere.

They desire to have a common seal, to sue and be sued, and make such constitution and by-laws as they may see fit, and have all other corporate rights that the laws of Georgia will give them, and to be incorporated for twenty years with the privilege of renewal at the expiration of that time.

They pray that an order be granted allowing the amendments to their charter asked for, giving them, their associates and successors all of the powers of a body corporate under the laws of Georgia. eorgia.
Petitioners will ever pray, etc.
LEWIS W. THOMAS,
LEWIS W. THOMAS, Georgia, Fulton county. The above and foregoing is a true and correct copy of an application for charter, as appears of record in this office, this February 5, 1890.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 27, 1890.

The Passing of the Surplus. We alluded several days ago to the state ment, made on the authority of the ways and means committee, to the effect that there would be little or no reduction of taxation, owing to the fact that the appropriations and projects already mapped out by the republicans would cover the entire surplus, even if they did not create a deficit.

Now comes Congressman Morse, of Massachusetts, who boldly declares, in announcing his opposition to an appropriation for the world's fair, that a surplus of $100,000,000 will be necessary to meet the extraordinary appropriations, estimated at from 250 millions to 350 millions of dollars.

Mr. Morse says the world's fair is a luxury, and before money can be spent on such things 100 millions must be appropriated for dependent pensions, 20 millions a year for rivers and harbors, the same amount for public buildings, as much more for a navy, and a like sum for coast defenses, 15 millions for a postal telegraph, 10 millions a year for education, not to mention steamship sub-

This, it will be seen, is a rich and fat programme, and in the face of it the surplus that was causing everybody so much trouble under an honest and an economical administration, is nothing more than a myth. Secretary Windom estimated a surplus of 44 millions for the year, but according to Mr. Peters, of Kansas, who followed Mr. Morse, the estimated surplus would nearly disappear in the ordinary course of appropriations for usual expenses.

As the Springfield Republican aptly puts it, the republican party "is committed by its platform, president's message, cabinet reports and recommendations, and bills already framed by leaders, to schemes involving the spending of from $200,000,000 to $350,000,000 above the present cost of running the government; and it is also committed to plans to extinguish the surplus, on which these schemes are based, by a reduction of the revenues. It is manifestly impossible to meet an expense of $200,000,000 with a surplus of $100,000,000; it is still more impossible to meet such an expense with no snrplus. As a matter of fact, and we speak advisedly, there has never existed a man or party which could make either zero or $100,000,000 equal to $200.000,000 or $300,-000,000. The republicans think they can solve that problem, and Mr. Morse follows np to the point of believing that zero can be made to equal $200,000,000, but not a dollar more. The country awaits the result with interest-and it will keep a sharp eye on the

Editor Shepard Disappointed.

Editor Shepard, of the New York Mail and Express, ran over to Philadelphia the other day and made a speech against Sunday newspapers to the Baptist conference.

The Baptist ministers listened to Editor Shepard, but to his astonishment proceeded to disagree with him.

The Rev. Russell H. Conwell said that he could not tell how to deal with Sunday papers, as he could not wholly denounce them. He had tried newspaper life, and found that more people remained away from church than went there. Theoretically, Editor Shepard might be right, but practically he was wrong. So far as the publica tion of sermons was concerned. Mr. Conwell thought those which had the least Christianity in them were published first.

The Rev. I. D. King said that men were better off at home on Sunday reading the newspapers than they would be in the saloons. The thing to do was to make the Sunday papers better.

The Rev. Dr. Rees said that a man could not spend twelve hours in religious meditation, and the Sunday paper filled up a gap in Editor Shepard heard all this in blank amazement. At the close of the meeting he scowled upon the assembled Baptists, shook the dust from his number elevens, and boarded the next train for New York.

A Man of Too Many Talents.

Out west they are discussing Berry Sulgrove, the Indianapolis journalist who died the other day. Sulgrove was a brilliant man, but his nu merous gifts handicapped him in the race. He became the slave of whisky and was never able to do anything for himself. Strange to say, he was for a generation a writing force, a power behind the throne in the politics of his state. He made and unmade men, and built up their fortunes. He was never seen at the front, but governors and statesmen sought his counsel. He wa so well versed in law, theology, medicine, history, art, science, music and literature, that when he visited Rome he was known as "the learned American." Anywhere and in any company, in a palace or in a cabin talking to scholors or to vagrants, he was a home, a commanding and an attractive figure. Thoroughly unselfish, he neglected his own interests and enjoyed nothing more than the study of man and nature. If this man had been endowed with only one talent it might have made him rich and powerful. But his many talents got in each ther's way, confused him, made him variable, and drove him to seek relief for his strained faculties in the bottle. One of his contemporaries says of him: "He was an original man who lived sixty-three years to work, to suffer, to enjoy, to seek knowledge, to love nature, and to help others and make them happy."

Sulgrove was unfortunate in being able to do anything well. If he' had been blessed have run along in the groove for which he was fitted and would have won fame and fortune. The universal genius who can do anything and everything goes mad, or gets drunk, and dies without having made his mark in the world.

The New North.

The New York Herald voices the sentiment of millions of northeners when it protests against the proposed attempt to put southern elections under bayonet rule. Besides the objections to such a courae based upon fairness and justice, the poin is made that the north cannot afford to endanger her material interests in the south by reckless legislation.

The Philadelphia Evening Telegraph speaks out boldly on the Herald's line. It warns the republican leaders that their policy if persisted in will bring disaster upon their party. It is too late after twenty-five years of peace to revive the strife and bitterness of the war. The republican scheme is to pass a force hill that will give the counting and returning of all votes cast to republican officers, appointed by a republican president, and controlled by a republican attorney general. Naturally such methods will call forth protests from the south, and in some localities the protests may be bloody, but the responsibility for them will-rest upon the partisan managers who are plotting this great wrong.

An appeal to the moral sense of the republican leaders would be useless, but the Herald and the Telegraph shrewdly put them upon notice that they cannot strike at the material interests of the south without injuring the material interests of the north. If there is a new south, there is also a new north. Northern men since reconstruction have invested millious of capital in southern industries. The two sections are now knit together by the ties of mutual interest in a business way, and the party that tries to antagonize them will injure their common prosperity and bring upon itself the curses of all good citizens.

Our Philadelphia contemporary says: The country had a rather prolonged and not too satisfactory experience of carpet-bag rule, and it wants no more of it, nor of those bayonet laws which render it possible. It is desirable that the republican party should continue to control the government only in case the majority so decide, and providing that it rules all parts of the country It cannot make one law for the south and another for the north. The country is one now; peace and unity have prevailed for twenty-five years, and the bonds of fraternal feeling and interest grow stronger every day among the people It is only reckless, professional politicians who are trying to weaken or break them. Should they succeed in doing it, they will not profit by they expect to do. It was indignant popular sen timent in the north which compelled the repeal of the obnoxious reconstruction laws. The south had nothing to do with it; and if a federal election law such as is proposed should be passed, northern patriotic sentiment would compel its re-peal. It is not only a question now of political morality, but of business, that the south shall be treated fairly and justly. The north and south have given bonds of fate, in hard cash, in investe capital, in mines, mills, furnaces, foundries, shops railroads, and all other forms of business, and they are bonds with which the politicians had bet ter not tamper. Reckoning day has come before to unserupulous political managers, and so will it come again to those who aim to help themselves at the cost of the country's peace and prosperity. All hail to the new north for these patriotic words? Let the republican bosses proceed with their work. The new south will join hands with the new north and bury them under an avalanche of freemen's ballots!

Hew to Deal With Nihilism.

Dr. Tiffany, in a recent address in Chicago, said that we should invite the Chinese to our shores because "no other element within our borders can so readily offset the violence of nihilism as the quiet submissiveness of the Chinese."

This is queer talk. The very thing that preserves liberty and good government is the refusal of Americans to quietly submit to wrong. Our people know their rights and dare to maintain them. They have already offset the violence of a gang of Chicago nihilists by hanging the leaders. They have sent other followers of the red flag to prison. Quiet submission is no part of our programme, and this characteristic of the Chinese is one good reason for objecting to their presence in this country.

If Dr. Tiffany has nothing better to say in favor of Chinese immigration, he should turn his attention to some other subject.

Another Prophet of Evil.

We observe that at the recent meeting of the Freedman's Aid and Educational society in Chicago, that Dr. Thirkield, the president of the Gammon Theological seminary, of Atlanta, made some very sensational remarks about the situation in the south and succeeded, according to the dispatches, in working himself up into quite a passion, and predicted the uprising of the blacks if the wrongs they now complain of were not soon righted. The Herald's Chicago correspondent thus describes the address:

He painted in the blackest colors possible the ondition of the negro in the south, and gave many instances of cruelty with which the black man was treated. Dr. Thirkield said that "justice man was treated. Dr. Intraced said that "justice to him under the existing circumstances was an impossibility, and the remedy for all these awful evils must come from without. It devolves upon the peopte of the north to right this wrong. This is no longer a sectional question. It is a national question. It affects alike the north, legal interference. The enactment of laws or the interference of the state is not the remedy needed This is not a matter of subjugation, but of civili-zation, and an educated ministry is needed to di-rect toward a peaceful reformation those powers and agencies which, left to themselves, will break forth in bloody revolution.

The |brutality of the whites, the work of the shotgun, the universal injustice to which they are subjected, will not always serve to hold the groes to the earth, and if the influence of the re-ligion of Jesus Christ is not soon felt in a reformhunders of the uprising.

Thirkield is a son-in-law of the late Gilbert Haven, who was a man of vigorous inellect, whatever may be said of his preju-Thirkield, on the other hand, has struck us as being a sort of apostle of skimmilk, a miid young man whose native ferocity had expanded itself in a set of beautiful side whiskers. But if there is any skimmilk in Thirkield's disposition it got into a state of furious fermentation at Chicago.

It is such "impasssioned" and sensationa statements that give the people of the north a totally wrong idea of the situation at the south. All the good they do is to excite sectional prejudice among the people who hea them, and, by reaction prejudice among the people at whom they are aimed.

If Thirkield is as sensible a young man as his position would indicate, he no doubt realizes the fact that he did a very foolish thing in making the remarks he is credited with. As a matter of fact he gives himself a slap in the face, for after making a num? with a narrower range of intellect he would ber of absurd charges he goes on to say that the only remedy is to be found in the religion of Jesus Christ.

One of the precepts of the religion of Jesus Christ is that no man shall bear false witness against his neighbors, and Thirkield violates this precept in the most outragious manner when he speaks, without qualification, of "the brutality of the whites," and when he charges that the negroes are treated with 'universal injustice.'

If the "educated ministry," to which Thirkield ailudes, is to be animated by the spirit which he displays, the members thereof will stir up strife or know the reason why. It is a pity that those who profess to be the friends of the negro do not have his real interests at heart.

A College President on Reporters.

At the recent Harvard dinner President Eliot went out of his way to attack newspaper reporters. He spoke of them generally as an ignorant and disreputable class, and said newspapers made a great mistake in making Harvard graduates do reporting at first, as they were fitted for editorial work.

The speech was received in solemn silence, without the slighest mark of approval. When President Eliot closed Mr. Erastus Brainerd, an old Constitution man, took the floor. He mildly said that the remarks of the president were senseless, and untrue, and then proceeded to show that in point of ability and character reporters held their own with any other profession.

President Eliot is a man with a grievance. He thinks that because his graduates write good essays they are qualified from the start to fill editorial positions. This is a mistake. In fact, we seriously doubt whether Presidet Eliot himself would be equal to the task of writing acceptable editorials upon current. topics as fast as his attention was called to them during the day. He would demand time for thought, and a quiet place, and a lot of authorities, and finally he would turn out an article suitable for a volume of essays but not for a daily newspaper. It is the same with the average college graduate. The best way for him to become a newspaper man is to bigin as a reporter.

But why should the Harvard president try to put reporters as a class under the ban? Charles Dickens was a reporter. James Gordon Bennett, Henry J. Raymond, Henry M. Stanley, Amos Cummings and R. W. Gilder were reporters. A longer list would show a wonderful amount of talent and character.

The truth is, the reporter is the most conspicuous figure in journalism. He makes a paper great or little. When he does firstlass work he gets first-class pay. When he does something phenomenal he commands from ten to twenty thousand dollars a year and is sent to courts and camps as a special correspondent.

It is said that President Eliot denies some of the sentiments credited to him, but the reports in the New York, Boston and Philadelphia papers leave little room for doubt that he, without cause, slandered an army of honest and industrious brain-workers. Brainerd was not too severe when he characterized his speech as "senseless and un-

On account of the rush of bills toward the lose of the session, quite a number of clerical errors are noticeable, and some of the acts are not worth the paper they were originally writ ten upon. A striking illustration of this is in the charter of a railroad intended to run from Atlanta to the sea, through Burke county. By ome means Banks county was substitute Burke, and the company has no charter through Burke. The longest act is the new charter for the city of Brunswick. It covered one hundred and one pages of engrossing paper, and when finished weighed seven and a half pounds.

This act takes up thirty-two pages book. The next largest is the famous charter for Walesca, a little Cherokee county town. One of the most unique charters is for a little town in southwest Georgia. It provides for a mayor, a board of eleven aldermen and an advisory board. The latter to meet once a vear, either in the village or the city of New

But she never came back that night at all, nor did she ever come home again. Day after day passed and nothing was heard of her. Search was made investigation had, but no trace of her could be found. Time passed, and she bec forgotten, except by her own people. We often hear people say that the weather is the most emarkable they have ever known, but I do not believe any person can truthfully say he has seen before this such a mild winter. Down in Fayette county where I live, the trees are almost all out in bloom. I have planted some of my corn, and I tell you it is a big temptation to the farmers to do all their planting. A WOMAN CLAIMS THAT HER LIFE IS THREATENED.

A New Industry for Georgia and Other Items of Interest Gathered From the Several Departments.

Early yesterday morning a young mulatto girl presented herself at the capitol, and re-quested to see the governor. She was evi-dently suffering from great mental excitement. She proved to be Odessa S. Day, who was the sufferer from an assault last summer. She now claims that the friends of the two young white men whom she charges with assaulting her, are using every effort to drive her from the county, in order that the case may be dismissed for want of prosecution. She also claimed that constant threats are being made

Judge Nisbet explained to her that all the governor could do would be to write to the solicitor, and that would be done at once. He also told her that if any more threats were made, she should swear out a peace warrant against anybody she suspected of being guilty of the intimidation.

Captain T. B. Blount, the sheriff of McIntosh county, was at the capitol yesterday morning to procure the necessary documents to extradite William Smith, alias William Williams.

Smith is wanted in McIntosh for having murdered Rabe Glover in a billiard room on the 15th of April, 1889. After committing the the 15th of April, 1889. After committing the crime he fled the country, and was arrested a few days ago in Columbia, where he is now being held. Governor Gordon found on examination that Captain Blount's papers were not regular, and he was therefore unable to grant the requisition. In order, however, that the murderer might not escape, Governor Gordon sent a telegram to Governor Richardson asking that Smith be held. Sheriff Blount in the mean time has returned to Darian, and as soon as his papers are made legal he will return to Atlanta, procure the extradition papers and proceed to Colemen to secure the prisoner.

Commissioner of Agriculture Henderson is daily receiving orders for the book entitled. The Commonwealth of Georgia which he published under an act of the legislature. The volume is full of interesting facts concerning the resources of the state and it gives statistics which are obtainable from no other source. Yesterday Judge Henderson received applications for the volume from George W. Moore, of Hartford, Conn., and from John Bellervy, of York, England. The citizens of Great Brittain seem to be looking toward Georgia as the best place in America to which to emigrate. Already a large number of the books have been asked for by Englishmen and in every case a volume has been sent across the ocean.

Commissioner Henderson received yesterday the notification of a new industry which is rapidly being developed in Decatur and Thomas coanties. The new industry is the cultivation of tobacco and its manufacture into cigars. Years of effort have demonstrated that the nearest approach to the Cuban tobacco, both for strength and flavor, is that raised in Decatur county, Georgia, and Gadsden county, Florida.

A factory has just been established by John E. Dickinson at Bainbridge, to manufacture the tobacco grown in Decatur and Thomas counties into cigars. Yesterday Judge Henderson received a sample of the work done by Mr. Dickinson. He said he thought they were good until he smoked one, and then he knew they were excellent. Commissioner Henderson received vester-

During the meeting a committee from the Knights of Labor appeared and a joint conference in regard to the store was had.

Next Thursday afternoon the alliance committee will hold another meeting in conjunc tion with a large delegation from the Knights of Labor. At that meeting something definite is more than probable to be decided upon.

It may result in the combination of forces of the local knights and the Fulton county alliance, at least so far as the co-operative store

SENIOR VS. JUNIOR.

Seventeen men and a musical professor trying to sing a song where five men couldn't hear

Senior vs. junior-A picturesque bit of college rivalry-rathe a useless and grotesque affair to most people, but a matter of gravity enough to two classes at Emery college, and especially, of course, to the twenty-two men and the musical professor directly interested. It is customary at Emory for the seniors to plant about this time every year a class tree. It is called "Arbor day" and the occasion is generally observed with elaborate ceremonies appropriate to the occasion.

The young tree is planted, each member of the senior class putting in a spade full of earth, a speech or two is made, and the programme is concluded with the singing of the class song. The song is composed by a member of the class, and set to music-usually an original

It is the part of the junior class to steal that song before Arbor day. The seniors, of course, try to prevent this.

It is considered a great victory for the juniors if their purpose is achieved, and a defeat for the seniors. Any means are used to steal the song; all means are used to keep it from being stolen. There is plotting and counter-plotting, and the result is watched with the liveliest interest.

Yesterday seventeen members of the senior class boarded the early morning train at Covington, intending to rehearse the class song at Shiloh church, a short distance from Covington, out of hearing of the juniors. With them was Professor McIntosh, their musical director. Their going had been carefully guarded as a class secret, but by some means the juniors learned of it the night before, and just as their train started yesterday morning the seventeen seniors were dismayed at seeing five juniors rush out from the waiting room and get on the train with them. The seniors consulted in whispers for a while, and finally concluded to go on to Con-

When the train stopped there, the seventeen seniors got off. So did the juniors. Just as the train started off the seniors embarked again, and so did the juniors. The seniors held another consultation, and decided to go on to Lithonia. The juniors paid fare, likewise, to the next station.

When Lithonia was reached, the seniors got off, and so did the juniors. As the train started off the seniors got on again, and so did the juniors.

Funds were getting scarce. The seniors pooled their money, and bought tickets all around for Atlanta. The juniors paid to the next station, Redan.

When Redan was reached the same feint was made by the seniors, but the juniors were not to be thrown off. The juniors paid to the next station, Stone effort to get rid of the juniors.

Here the seniors made another ineffectual

The same thing was done at Clarkston, but with the same effect. The juniors were almost out of money, and a conference revealed the fact that there was not enough money in the common stock to bring all of them to Atlanta. Luckily, however, they had several acquaintances aboard, and the necessary balance was borrowed.

At Decatur again, and with the same result, the seniors tried to throw off the juniors. They all reached Atlanta together at 7:55 yesterday morning.

The seniors held another consultation, and acting upon the advice of Professor McIntosh, they repaired to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ed Burns, 178 Crew street. The juniors, waiving the consideration of breakfast, followed. When the seniors reached their destination the juniors were only a few yards behind them. Professor McIntosh called a halt and addressed the juniors. He told them that the seniors were going into a private residence by personal invitation, and that the juniors were not invited; that the presence of the juniors was a trespass; that they, the juniors, were not wanted lounging about the gate. The seniors went in, leaving the juniors at the gate. Professor McIntosh sent a message to Chief Connolly, asking that a patrolman be sent to scare off the juniors.

It happened that there was no piano at 178, and a piano was necessary. So the seniors went across to the home of Mr. Albert Bellingrath, 199 Crew, where the use of a piano was given them. The appearance of a policeman scattered the juniors, and the seniors were in high feather over their victory.

They sang with a will—doubtless with a peculiar relish at being able to sing.

They sang their song over and over, until

Professor McIntosh was really in condition to congratulate them on the effect, and then

Just as they were going out the smiling countenance of a junior, like Banquo's ghost, loomed up at the window of the next house, only ten feet from the room where they had been rehearsing. The blighting effect of that junior's smile was remarkable. The seniors looked withered. Their satisfaction evaporated and disappeared. Mature consideration heightened, rather than diminished, the chagrin. With the juniors, of course, the eavesdropping and subsequent consideration had quite contrary effect, and when the two parties left together yesterday afternoon for Covington, it was easy to tell, apart from the members, which were the seniors and which were the

SOME PROMINENT ATLANTA MEN GIVE THEIR OPINIONS

As to the Value of the Property There, Both for Residences and for Investment— Opinions That Are Interesting.

Atlanta land has always commanded a good price. Other cities have bloomed and boomed, out Atlanta haz grown steanily, and especially is it so with suburban property.

This city is becoming a city of most favorable locations. A great many things are to be taken into consideration when you go to buy a home. You want a home free from the noise of the city, free from the heat and the dust, and, in fact, free from everything that is objectionable to city life. You want a home with plenty of pure air, plenty of sunshine, and plenty of everything that goes to make an ideal home. Such a home may be found at Inman park. That is the opinion of the business men of this city. A Constitution representative had a short talk with several of our prominent citi-zens yestereay. Without a single exception every one approached on the subject speaks favorably of Inman park. Here is what they

MH. H. H. CABANISS: "From the first time I saw this park with the improvements well under way, I regarded it as the choicest of Atlanta's suburbs in many respects. I expect to see it become exceedingly popular. To those who don't wish to live in the city, there can be no more attractive place than Inman park. ECLECTIC COLLEGE OF MEDICINE HOLDS ITS SOTH ANNIVERSARY.

Speeches Made by the President and Other Gentlemen Who Take an Interest in Medicine and Humanity.

Sixteen young doctors were sent out into the world last night to alleviate suffering and cure the ills of humanity.

The fiftieth annual commencement of the Georgia College of Eclectic Medicine and Surgery was held at DeGive's opera house. The opera house was filled with the friends and relatives of the graduates, and the big audience took a deep interest in the proceed

The students of the college were seated in the rows immediately in front of the stage, which was occupied by Professors A. G. Thomas, G. W. Delbridge, I. J. M. Goss, J. W. Stone, W. M. Durham, Doctors G. W. Patterson, M. Y. Salter, F. T. Powell, S. T. Biggers, P. Y. Rogers, H. H. Green, J. G. Armstrong, Colonel W. R. Phillips and Hon. John Clay

Professor Dobbs opened the proceedings by a short but fervent prayer, after which Dr. A G. Thomas, president of the college, made

AN ANNUAL REPORT. He said that he was pleased to inform the faculty and the audience that a larger class had been matriculated this year than ever be-fore, and also that the graduates were more in number and had done better work than any of the previous forty-nine. He claimed that the character of the students, as a class, was far above the average, and they proved themselves above the average, and they proved themselves gentlemen of high characters.

Dr. Thomas then stated that the sixteen gentlemen who would be given diplomas were:

THE CLASS EXERCISES.
The salutatory was delivered by Mr. T. Oscar Bryant, of Georgia, and was throughout an excellent address. He spoke of the progress of medicine during the past fifty years. an excellent address. He spoke of the prog-ress of medicine during the past fifty years, and predicted that when another half century had passed, the schools of medicine which now exist would be done away with, and all physi-cians would be working together for the benefit of mankind. fit of mankind.

DR. J. G. ARMSTRONG.
Dr. J. G. Armstrong delivered the annual address, and, as usual when the great orator speaks, the entire audience was enthralled by his eloquence, and listened to his words with the decreet attention.

the deepest attention.

Dr. Armstrong began by saying that as one who loves his fellows he could not fail to take who loves his fellows he could not fail to take an interest in the great work that was being done by the three colleges of Atlanta, in preparing and qualifying men to go into the world and alleviate suffering. When these young men received their commissions from their alma mater he claimed they received just as literal a commission from God bidding them to go out and heal disease, cleanse the lepers and cast out devils of sickness.

Dr. Armstrong gave the graduating class an

Dr. Armstrong gave the graduating class an impressive warning, begging them not to administer narcotics without due deliberation. He pictured the great evils which follow a too free use of the drug, and finished by bidding the young doctors go into the world and do their duty as men and Christians.

their duty as men and Christians.

CONFERRING THE DEGREES.

After the band had rendered a selection of music, Dr. A. G. Thomas cenferred the degrees in an appropriate speech.

The valedictory was delivered by Benjamin L. Simmons, of Tennessee, and it was greeted by the hearty applause which it deserved.

The election of officers which was the next order of business resulted as follows: Dr. F. T. Powell, president; Dr. M. C. Fischer, first vice president; Dr. W. Y. Robertson, second vice president; Dr. W. V. Deatterson, treasurer, and Dr. W. N. Durham, secretary.

On being installed, President Powell made a magnificent address, reviewing the work of the society, after which the convention adjourned sine die.

On invitation, Mr. J. G. Thrower, of this city, exhibited his invalid lift and support to the eclectic medical convention. The exhibition of the working of the appliance was very successful, eliciting words of praise from many. Among others was the following beautiful tribute from one of the ladies present to a professor of the college, and not expected to reach the ear of Mr. Thrower. "I loose sight," said she, "of the excellence of the machine in my admiration for the man who, by this invention, has become a benefactor to poor, suffering humanity.

JEFFERSON-FLORENCE.

Tonight the famous comedy company headed by these two great artists will appear in Atlanta for one night only. This is an opportunity that every lover of the stage in its highest and purest expression must take advantage of. He will witness undoubtedly, tonight the finest performance eve given in America—the highest type of comedy, in-terpreted by actors whose art is mellowed by long experience until it has reached perfection.

We cannot give a better idea of the treat in store for our citizens than by reproducing the fol-lowing from the New York Tribune of last Octo-ber 15th:

ber 15th:

"The Rivals" is familiar and delightful to all the intelligent play-goers of this city. They have seen it again and again under varied conditions, and many times with Mr. Joseph Jefferson as Acres. Of that impersonation nothing new can now be said. The same individuality of conception, embodied in the same perfect form, exercised once more last night the same potent fascination upon all who saw it. And if possible the whole was even more exquisite and completely transfused with the lovely spirit of the actor than ever before.

Mrs. Drew, dear to the hearts of thousands, made good the vivid recollection of her past triumphs as Mrs. Malaprop. No other embodiment so true and so adequate has been seen within the memory of those now in middle life, and no one else has denoted the harmless self-sufficiency of ignorance with so fine an air of decorous authority. That is and of right ought to be the dominating characteristic of the impersonation, and the eager response to the expression of this purpose whenever Mrs. Drew was on the stage was at once a proof of the discrimination or the audience and a worthy tribute to the admirable skill of the actress.

Mr. Florence received the cordial and heartfelt welcome from a host of friends which he long ago earned and has never failed to enjoy. His association with Mr. Jefferson for the production of the masterpieces of comedy 4s one of the most salutary and interesting incidents in the annals of the American stage. A burst of applause greeted his entrance and zealous attention and approbation followed him to the end. He reappeared as Sir Lucius O'Trigger, a character which he has not as sumed for many years, and which, therefore, possessed for the audience an element of novelty which had been eagerly anticipated.

In a comedy like "The Rivals," where every word is a point, and every instant brings a situation, there is no time for prolonged and vociferous applause, but from the first moment to the last, the house was full of that rippling laughter and happy tumult which are the best acknowledgment and the best reward.

Trating the hilarious Celtic farce "McCarty's Mishaps."

The organization is a celebrated one in the laughing world. The principals have not only played in this country but in every civilized quarter of the globe. Their reception in nearly every city visited equals an ovation. In New Orleans, during the past they had the honor to play to a larger number of people than the St. Charles theater has held for many years.

It is a laughing performance only, and fulfills its only claim to public attention by affording two and a half hours with the dark side of life forgotten, and that time spent in worship at the shrine of the favored god of comedy 'Momus."

The Voyage of Life.

Life is beset by evils and changes on every side. From birth to manhood and from manhood until old age eternal vigilance is the price of health. There is one remedy that has saved many a rickety, headaching, blood poisoned, dyspeptic mortal to a life of usefulness and robust health. It is known as Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla and it is a Sarsaparilla that is a Sarsaparilla. Not a thousand doses of molasses and water for a dollar, but a concentrated essence of the best virtues of sarsaparilla and other alterative herbs. It heals, it cures where other sarsaparilla and blood remedies have no more effect than so much stagnant water. If your system craves an alterative, if you do yourself a great injustice if you fail to try this excellent remedy. Demand it of your druggist and take no other.—Sidney Times.

What the Season Means and What Should Be Done During It-A Thought Which He Advanced.

Bishop Beckwith preached an interesting and instructive sermon at St. Luke's cathedral

"What is the reason for your hope in Christ?" was the question which the bishop put to his hearers. Then he proceeded to tell them what the Christian's answer should be. "The first week of the season which the church has set apart for spiritual growth has passed," he said. "How have you spent it?

As life is real sin is real, religion must be quite as real as life or sin. During the past week have we gained anything in spirituality? have we discovered our besetting sin? have we called on God to help us to conquer it? Has this week brought us nearer to God or have we drifted farther away from Him."

The bishop continuing said that for this sea-son and for Atlanta and his diocese, he had one thought which would be profitable, and it was founded on the inspired statement made by St. Peter: "Be ready to give an answer to "Imagine some intelligent man asking, in all sincerity, 'What is the ground or reason of your hope in Christ?' The hope you have in the life and death and resurrection of our Lord to save you for all eternity.

swer? Perhaps you thought that St. Peter meant that such an answer was to be given by the professor in his chair or the theologian from his pulpit. He didn't mean that an ordinary person like myself should respond to such a question. Yes, he did; he meant that the professor, and the theologian, and the merchant, the workman at his bench, and the poor woman at her needle, should be ready with an answer for the hope that was in them. Such an answer need not satisfy the law of logic. If such an answer were demanded the questioner might in turn be required to answer 'what caused the pulsation of the ed to answer 'what caused the pulsation of the heart'—for the ordinary reply that it is due to certain qualities in the blood 'would mean no more than an apothecary's label.' So in medicine, a little bit of opium will put a man to sleep—yet no reason can be assigned for such action. It is known that the sun holds the planets in their orbits as they march around his throne, and we ascribe the power to the law of gravitation. But that doesn't explain it. Nine-tenths of the best knowledge in this world was never obtained by reason, but by orld was never obtained by reason, but by law of gravitation. But that doesn't explain it. Nine-tenths of the best knowledge in this world was never obtained by reason, but by experience.

This, then, was to be the Christian's answer: I have taken the Master's life and studied it, I have taken His words and studied them, and I have tried to imitate His life as my rule of life. And as I have struggled on in His footsteps, there has come into my life a power and a guiding principle unfelt before. And as the wise men followed the Star of Bethlehem, and felt their faith increase the nearer they came to the holy place—"which I was permitted to see"—so there has grown with me in Christian life a sweetness and strength the result of the Christian rule even in the dark, sad days when sickness and death came to my home, I have felt its influence as I sat among the ruins of my life, I have felt a power greater and braver than death, and I have heard a clear, strong voice which said, 'I know that my Redeemer liveth.'

"When I turn to God's word I find the Master sending His challenge down the ages—and when you contemplate the record of His chulenge down the ages—and when you contemplate the record of His chulenge down the sight to make such a challenge, He had. 'If any man will do My will he shall know of this doctrine whether I am of God.' This challenge is to the scientist and the student, to the child and the philosopher. Do His will and you shall have the knowledge,'

After more argument to prove that experience was the method used in acquiring other knowledge, and that its first rule was obedience, the bishop made the subject apply to acts of obedience necessary to the proper observance of Lent such as abstinence in food, pleasure and other forms of self-denial. The devil was busiest at such seasons. When the church calls for holier living and self-denial the tempter comes and covers the bill-boards with the announcement of this famous actor or that great actress. "All this will I give thee," he says. "Why, bishop, I have made an engagement to go to the thea

In another column will be seen the semiannual statement of the Maryland Life Insurance company, of Baltimore, which is conclusive as to the strength, solidity and excellent condition of the company; its annual report also on January 1st showed a very flattering state of its affairs, having largely increased its business, added largely to its assets, and surplus, as well as paying a good dividend to its policy holders, and meeting every obligation promptly. This, however, is but the natural and universal showing of the company in its past history of a quarter of a century natural and universal showing of the company in its past history of a quarter of a century and could not well be otherwise under the able management of Baltimere's ablest and most successful business men, such as William H. William H. Blackford, president of the company.
Baltimore is noted as one of the most solid and conservative cities of this country, and the Maryland Life is one of its prides, and amongst its most solid and substantial institutions fo a quarter of a century's existance, and during that period such a thing as contesting, compromising, or even delaying a death claim is entirely unknown in its history, while the bulk of its business has been done at and in the states near its home, it is by no means a stranger in Georgia and tis by no means a stranger in Georgia and other extreme southern states. It has many of our prominent citizens among its policyholders, who, from their experience with the company, invariably have a good word to speak for it.

The company now propose to put new life in their southern business, and is determined to have the share of southern business that it merits, by fair and honest dealing with policyholders, with as low (or lower) rates as any first class company on all forms of insurance. The southern people have not forgotten Baltimore's sympathy in all her days of trial and difficulty, and the warm feeling of alliance and community of interests between that city and the people of this section, together with the sound and safe business principles upon which its business is conducted, and represented by such well and favorably known citizens as zens as

PRESIDENT EICHELBERGERS FIRST VISIT SOUTH SINCE THE WAR.

He Tells How He Drove from Pennsylvania in 1842, and was Offered the Site of At-lanta for a Carriage.

Captain Eichelberger, the president of the Baltimore and Harrisburg Railroad is in At-

It is thirty-seven years since Captain Eichelberg visited the south, and the changes and improvements which have taken place in that time are a constant source of wonder and delight to him.

He is visiting his friend, Dr. McCook, at Edgewood. Every day, however, Captain Eichelberger comes into the city, and his tall form, somewhat bent by years, and his strongly marked features are becoming familiar to the habitues of the Kimball house rotunda.

The stories that Captain Eichelberger has to tell of the south as he first saw it, in 1843, are very interesting, and whenever he can be persuaded to talk a crowd quickly gathers about Yesterday the captain was in a reminiscent mood. "I first came south," he said, "in the summer of 1843. I had a brother who was living in Troup county, near LaGrange, and when I told my friends in Hanover, Pa., that I intended driving in a buggy to visit him they thought I was crazy, and told me I would be killed before I got half way.

"I did not believe half the stories I was told, but when I drove out of Hanover on the morning of the 23d of April, 1843, I was a perambulating arsenal. In each pocket of my clothes a pistol was concealed, and a large knife was ready to my hand. Before I had been on the road to the south for a week I realized that I was making myself uncomfortable without cause

"First I put my pistols in my traveling bag, and by the end of the next week they were safely stowed away at the bottom of my trunk where they remained until I returned to the north.
"I drove through the valley of Virginia and Tennessee, and then Alabama to my destination. What I saw of the country thoroughly delighted me, and when I went north in the fall it was with the determination to return the following year. "In accordance with my plan, I returned in 1844, and then it was that missed the opportunity of my life. I came as far south as Charleston on the railroad. I brought with me several carriages, which I proposed to sell to the planters, and I hired men and drove through the country to my brother's place. One night I stopped at Barnesville, and put up for the night with an old Scotchman named Mitchell. He was a canny Scott, but a genial, pleasant old man, and I remember how he woke us all the next morning by shouting that a frost had come during the night and it was a proper morning to take a drink of brandy. I proper morning to take a drink of brandy. I remember, too, how we all took him at his word and found his brandy excellent.

"This old man Mitchell took a great fancy to one of my carriages, and he was eager to become its possessor. He told me that he had not much money, but he had 202 acres of land at a place called Marthasville, which he would give me for my carriage. To this proposition I said no. I wanted cash fer my carriages, and not a tract of land way off in the woods.

"He explained to me that a railroad had been surveyed near Marthasville, and some day the

"He explained to me that a railroad had been surveyed near Marthasville, and some day the property might be valuable. I refused all his offers, however, and kept my carriage.

"So the heart of the city of Atlanta stands on that ground. The Kimball house, and much of the most valuable property in the city, I am told, is built on that 202 acres which neight have been mine had I so chosen.

"I went north again that fall, but I continued to come south every year until 1832. One of the most striking recollections I have is of a barbecue, at which I was present at LaGrange in 1846. It was the first thing of the kind I ever witnessed, and it made a lasting impression. I can even now see the long ditches which were dug and filled with fire, and the carcasses of oxen and sheep which were hung above to reast. The air was laden with the smell of cooking meats, and to me it was delicious.

"At that harbeene I heard for the first time "At that barbecue I heard for the first time Bob Toombs, Alex Stephens and Granger. I thought at that time Toombs was the most powerful speaker I had ever heard, and his fine proportions gave him a decided advantage over Stephens, though I considered Stephens by far the most erudite of the two men. I went to Washington several times in after years to hear Toombs speak, and I always enjoyed listening to him.

"In 1853 I was elected president of the Hanover branch road and I never had another opportunity to come south.

"When the battle of Gettysburg was sought my road was the only one in operation into Gettysburg, and it was dreadful to see the thousands of wounded soldiers that we were thousands er wounded solders that we were obliged to transport.

"What astonishes me most is this becutiful city which I find, where there was nothing but a small depot when I was here last. It seems like the work of magic, and it is difficult for me to realize that all this has been done in so short a time."

It is pure economy to buy Hood's Sarsa-parilla, for it is the only medicine of which an be truly said "100 Doses for One Dellar."r It is stronger, purer, and better than any othe blood purifier.

Mrs. S. M. Wilson, Round Mountain, Texas writes: "A lady friend of mine was troubled with bumps and pimples on her face and neck. She took three bottles of B. B. B., and her skin got soft and smooth, pimples disappeared and her health improved greatly."

James L. Bosworth, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "Some years ago I contracted blood poison. I had no appetite, my digestion was ruined, rheumatism drew up my limbs so I could hardly walk, my throat was cauterized five times. Hot Springs gave me no benefit and my life was one of torture until I ave B. B. a trial, and, surprising as it may eem, the use of five bottles cured me.'

TENNESSEE COAL AND IRON.

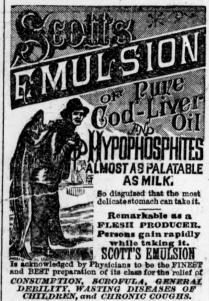

omething About the Recent Fluctuations in

The public is doubtless surprised at the rapid fluctuations in Tennessee coal and iron stock during the past few weeks. It will be remembered that in December. Mr. Thomas C. Platt, who was Conkling's celebrated "Me Too," as president of the Tennessee Coal and Iron compresident of the rennessee Coal and Iron com-pany, filed in the courts of New York a bill, making some grave charges against Mr. John H. Inman, former president of the company. The bill was filed late one evening, and several of the newspapers of New York city were loaded with sensational reports of the suit next morning. The charges were so flagrantly exaggerated that everybody knew that Platt was playing a bluff game. Mr. Inman's answer came out the day after in a dignified tone, giving positive de-nial to the most sensational parts of Platt's charges.
Tennessee Coal and Iron stock at that time was on a big boom. It ran up from thirty cents on the dollar, to eighty-seven and a half, and eighty-nine. In the meantime Mr. Inman's attorneys prepared an answer to the bill. About two weeks ago the answer was filed. The result has been that Tennessee Coal and Iron stock has been gradually dropping, until finally, day before yesterday, it reached fifty-one. Mr. Inman and his friends rallied around the stock to save it and bought over twenty-five thousand shares. It is thought that the stock may take another dip soon, and it may go down to forty.

The probability is, however, that it will remain about where it is now for several days, but will eventually go higher. It is rumored in New York that five of the direc tors, under Mr. Platt's management, have found out that he deceived them by his statements in regard to Inman, and every member of the company with him will unlead their holdings. There is a rumor in New York that an English syndicate will buy up the stock at present prices, and operate the concern. There is no doubt about its being a magnificent piece of property, and if properly man-aged it will be made to pay a dividend on its present capitalization.

INMAN PARK PROPERTY

On Thursday Afternoon, AT 2 O'CLOCK.

FEBRUARY 27TH, 1890.

I will sell on the premises, 50 of the very best unimproved lots in "Inman Park." Each lot is ward, possessing every conceivable advantage for a pleasant home.

The entire park property is sub-divided with the very best taste by a landscape engineer, with an eye to symetry, topography and prospective effect—wide streets and areunes—convenient back entries and turning ground in rear of lots, where needed—all capitally provided for. See lithographed plats.

entries and turning ground in rear of lots, where needed—all capitally provided for. See lithographed plats.

The lake, the lawns, the grass, all blend in giving beauty to the grounds.

Then the approach to the park, over Edgewood avenue with its fine paved drive and smooth, swift electric transit, is a luxury in its self, and ten minutes will put you out of the heart of the city into fresh air, pure water, shade, music of birds and the balm of the forest. But, no word-painting can do the lovely spot justice.

Those beautiful lots at "Delta Place." in fact the choicest lots on "Edgewood avenue," "Euclid avenue," "Waverly Way," Elizabeth, Decatur and Sprace streets, will be sold.

All who want homes with perfect titles, are requested to go out in person. Each lot is staked off and numbered. Go and examine for yourself and take your wife, the best part of yourself, with you, and select a lot. You cannot make a mistake when all are so desirable.

The terms are liberal and titles perfect.

One-third cash; balance in one and two years with 7 per cent interest.

All visitors to the sale will be conveyed there and returned by the "Edgewood Electric Cars' free.

wis restored by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The reason is that this preparation contains only the purest and most powerful alteratives and tonics. To thousands yearly it proves a veritable elixir of life.

Mrs. Jos. Lake, Brockway Centre, Mich., writes: "Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an

OF GEORGIA'S MOST DISTINGUISHED

A Glimpse Into the Workings of the University-Mr. Grady's last Work as Trustee-Some Changes.

ATHENS, Ga., February 26 .- [Special.]-Despite the arguments against the State university, there are but few Georgians who do not feel a pride in its success.

It has given to the world Stephens and Hill, the Cobbs, the Lumpkins, Toombs, Grady and scores of other illustrious men, and, judging the future by the past, it is but natural for Georgians to look to her to furnish her share of the leaders of the future.

Hence, occasionally, it is a matter of great interest and pleasure to her many loyal alumni throughout the country to hear from their alma mater what is being done and what is going to be done in the future.

Only today a number of her graduates passed through the campus, under the wide spreading oaks, through the halls, where they had spent many happy youthful hours, and reviewed the scenes then enacted, now only a pleasant memory to them.

The university today is in an exceptionally fine condition, and with the record it is making for the term of 1889-90, it will enter the new term with more auspicious hopes than ever before in its history. Upon the chancellor, more than any one other officer, necessarily rests the greatest burden in carrying on the affairs of the institution, and the university has been unusually successful in having as its cial head such an excellent disciplinarian, cultured scholar and refined gentleman as

CHANCELOR W. E. BOGGS. Coming into our midst a stranger from a distant city to take upon his shoulders the mantle of that great educator and scholar, Rev. Pat-rick H. Mell, he has won the golden meed of praise from every lip, and with ease and ability has administered the affairs of the university has administered the affairs of the university in a masterly way.

Since the opening of the term several changes have been made in many directions, which have all proven highly beneficial. The curriculum was raised in September, and the entrance examinations were much higher and harder than those of previous years. It is said that next term the curriculum will be raised still higher, and thus the university will attain a higher rank as an institution.

MR. GRADY'S LAST WORK AS TRUSTEE.

a higher rank as an institution.

MR. GRADY'S LAST WORK AS TRUSTEE.

When the breath left the body of Henry W.

Grady, the university lost one of the stanchest and truest friends it had ever known, and the last act of this illustrious son of the university was one in striking harmony with all the actions of his useful life.

The new board of trustees met and organized in Susembler and the question was

The new board of trustees met and organized in Sepsember, and the question was brought before them concerning the revival of the Sunday afternoon religioue exyrcises at the chapel. Mr. Grady, with that deep regard for religion always dwelling in his heart, moved that an appropriation be made to secure hymn books and an organ for these services; which was carried. That was the last work he ever did on the board of trustees of the university. Fitting close, indeed, to a service so loyal, generous and devoted as his.

These religious meetings are largely attended each Sabbath by both students and citizens, and lectures, which are very interesting, are delivered by the chancellor.

and lectures, which are very interesting, are delivered by the chancellor.

OTHER CHANGES.

A complete change was made in the system of teaching Latin and Greek, by Professor Willis H. Becock, the new professor of these studies. While making fine progress in his department, Professor Boock was taken ill, and for several months has been kept from his classes, but is now rapidly convalescing.

A change for the better has been made in the manner in which examinations are now held. The students are given no notice of when an examination is to be held, and consequently no "stuffing" can be done. A thorough test is thus made of what a person knows. This system is working admirably.

Several changes have been made in the different chairs. Professor D. C. Barrow is now in charge of the chair of pure mathematics with Colonel C. M. Snelling, as assistant. Professor W. H. Bocock has charge of Latin—and Greek, with Professor W. H. Pope as assistant, and Dr. W. L. Jones has charge of the chair of geology. The military system is proving a greater success than ever dreamed of, and the only regret to be entertained is that the state is unable to furnish guns to the company which are suited to the times.

THE DORMITORY TROUBLE.

A few days since the eating department of the dormitory was closed, on account of the determination of Rev. W. R. Stilwell to quit keeping the house. The boys still room in the house, and take their meals out in town. This will be remedied next year, when some other reliable gentleman will be given charge of the dormitory.

**COLLEGE POLITICS.**

The most exciting part of a student's college life is that given to the politics of the two literary societies. Older members can recall times when caucuses and meetings were held in the interest of the candidates, and campaign committaes appointed to do active and energetic work. But to a great extent those days have gone. The selection of champion debaters from the two societies is now by competitive debate and not by election. The societies hold these debates soon, and the Phi Kappas will discuss the race problem, while the Demosthenians will orate on the foreign immigration question. It is just a question of time when the anniversary crators will be chosen also. Fraternity quarry the first part of the session, have all simmered down, and good will pre alias among all the Greeks.

THE NEXT COMMENCEMENT.

THE NEXT COMMENCEMENT.

THE NEXT COMMENCEMENT.

The next annual commencement of the University of Georgia will be one of the best in all its history. With a thoroughly trained lot of speakers from among the students, orators from the state, preachers from the pulpits, and attendants from all over Georgia, it will be the most enjoyable of occasions. On commencement day a large number of young men will receive their diplomas, and a more thoroughly prepared class can not be found than the class which graduates at commencement.

found than the class which graduates at commencement.

The law school under the able management of Professor Andrew J. Cobb, Professor George Dudle Thomas, Judge Howell Cobb, and Dr. S. C. Benediet, numbering thirty-five men, will be one of the finest bodies of young men ever given their law diplomas. Everything pertaining to the University bears the mark of progress, and she will reach to a higher pinnacle of fame than ever before in her history.

What Young Energy Can Achieve.

From the Grenada (Miss.) Sentinel.

The Aberdeen Examiner tells of a boy about twenty years old who made fourteen bales of cotton and 100 bushels of corn, and we can tell of a boy not many miles from here who made eleven bales and 150 bushels of corn, and yet, men grown, heavy bearded, stoat men, say there is nothing in farming. Work like these boys worked and no man need tell the pitful story any longer that there is nothing in farming. Of course there is nothing in it when all the energies of human and mule power are not thrown into it. There is no necessity for any sensible, industrious man to leave Mississippi to find a better farming country. The climate is here, the soil is here, the civil and religious institutions are here, and what else is wanted but active intelligent industry? Nothing. Then, young man, pull off your coat, roll up your sleeves, and vow by General Jackson that you intend to make at least ten bales of cotton and 250 bushels of corn. Do not set your pegs lower, but higher if you will, and in less than ten years you will be surrounded with plenty and something to spare.

A NEW MEXICAN TERROR.

He Kills Three Deputy Marshals and Carries Off a Woman.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., February 26.—The stage driver from San Pedro states that the camp is in arms over the desperate acts of Lee White, who the other day held up and robbed John Elder, while on his way to pay off some miners. After committing the rob-he threatened to kill any per-coal miners. After committing the robbery he threatened to kill any person who attempted his arrest. He had a grudge against Superintendent Raunheim and Kibbee, of the copper smelter and mine, and told several parties that he would kill them on sight. He left San Pedro and showed up in Mayo's pipe-line camp, riding into camp with large pistols buckled around his body, and a Winehester rifle across his iap. The men had heard of the robbery, but dared not arrest him. He returned to San Pedro last night, and going to the barn of Steve Arnold, a teamster, stole one of his best horses. He then went to the house of an American woman, with whom he had been on intimate terms, and compelled her to cut off her hair, don men's clothes, mount an extra horse, and both left the camp together.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Meyers organized a posse as soon as possible and started in pursuit. A few miles from the camp they came up with the desperado and his girl. They ordered White to surrender, but he answered with a shot from his Winchester, and the deputy sheriff fell over unortally wounded. Firing then became general, the woman taking a hand in the shooting, and the driver states two more men were killed, but he did not learn their names before leaving. The citizens are determined to have White, dead or alive, and, should he and the White, dead or alive, and, should he and the woman be captured alive, their bodies will soon dangle from a pinot tree of the camp. Governor Prince has offered a reward for his arrest for highway robbery.

DODGING THE LICENSE.

The Farmers of North Carolina After the Guano Men.

RALEIGH, N. C., February 26 .- [Special.]-North Carolina collects $5,000 license tax for state, realizing about $44,000 yearly, out of which the department of agriculture and the State Agricultural and Mechanical college are maintained. Up to a few years ago, the state collected a license tax on commercial travelers. This was declared by the courts to be unconstitutional. Only half of the usual number of fertilizer licenses have been taken out this year, and the reason is that under the guidance of a lawyer, a pool has been formed by a number of the manufacturers, who propose to test in the federal courts the legal-ity of this tax, and who tender the tax under propose to the tax and the content of the court of the c ity of this tax, and who tender the tax under protest, but the agricultural department is checkmating this game, and refuses to issue any license save in the regular way, and gives notice that all unlicensed fertilizers will be seized at once. Today the farmers' alliance, which is greatly incensed at the attempt to avoid the tax, took a hand, and obtained the names of the firms. The have regularly taken out license. It will issue a circumstant to a support the same of the same and the same of the same larly taken out license. It will issue a circu-lar warning its ninety thousand mem-bers from patronizing any manufacturers save those who have regularly paid licenses.

VEST'S VIEW OF JOHN BROWN.

The Causes of the Great Conflict Werd Older Than the Man of Osawatomie In this arena first appeared John Brown of Osawatomie. Here he began the career which ended on the scaffold. In 1856 five men were murdered on Pottawatomie creek, Kas., by a party under com-mand of John Brown in which were four of his sons and a son-in-law. The victims were taken from their homes at midnight, butchered with knives and so mutilated that the crime was ascribed to the Comanche Indians. It was soon ascertained, however, that John Brown was responsible for that massacre. In 1858 he invaded Vernon county, Missouri, with his sons, and killed David Crews, a quiet and inoffensive citizen, besides carrying off a large quantity of stock and household property, with eleven negro slaves, the latter being sent to Canada.

sent to Canada.

When sentence of death was passed upon him at Harper's ferry, Brown alluded to this incident, and said;

"In the first place, I deny everything but what I have all along admitted—the design on my part to free the slaves. I intended certainly to have made a clear thing of that matter, as I did last winter when I went into Missouri and there took slaves without the sunning of as I did last winter when I went into Missouri and there took slaves without the snapping of a gun on either side, moved them through the country and finally left them in Canada."

There is no doubt from statements made by John Brown, jr., that his father's original scheme was to attack slavery in Missouri, and by running off slaves from the border counties render such property so insecure that the institution would be driven from the state.

It is the purpose of this monograph, if possi-tation would be driven from the state.

It is the purpose of this monograph, if possible, to avoid any sectional or partisan issue, but so much has been said in denunciation of the people of Missouri for their conduct in the border troubles of 1854-56, together with such extravagant eulogy of John Brown as a hero and liberator, that justice to the living and dead demands the truth in even a passing allusion to the events of that era. The causes, deep and ineradicable which lad to the conflict sion to the events of that era. The causes, deep and ineradicable, which led to the conflict were many years older than John Brown, but his career was a prelude to the crash of war which shook the temple of our government to its foundation.

THE STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, February 26.—The stock market today was quiet and left to itself, it would have shown an improving tendency as indicated by earlytrading, but the bears got in some pressers ea riytrading, but the bears got in some pressers upon Rock Island, Burlington, Lackawanna, St. Paul and some others, though with small effect only. The general list showed a strong undertone throughout, and the efforts of the bears, whether directed to unloading of long stock or covering of their shortage in a few shares, was without marked success anywhere. The only really weak spot in the list was sugar refineries, in which there were rumors and points that the stock would decline before the ints that the stock would decline before the opening of the market. The Chicago people were sellers of Rock Island and other grangers to a moderate extent, but the bulk of the pressure came from the bear contingent, and the argument that late reductions must result in smaller earnings, was set forth in support of their position. St. Paul was depressed below 67 on a large business, and Rock Island reached below 89 for a time, but Burlington was strong and failed to decline to any extent. There was little foreign buying of Louisville & Nashville, but trading for that interest was small, and the stock was dull in comparison with the last few days, while it reached over a narrow range, and showed little change at the close. The deal in Tennessee Coal seems to be about over, and that stock was riet and maintained within narrow limits today ninous stocks being almost neglected with the one exception of Colorado coal, which developed considerable animation, and strength-ening in the afternoon. Sugar also stiffened up when the regular list was weaker, but failed to hold its advantage There was some selling, also, of New England Reading, but both met with good support, and the pressure was soon removed. The market and the pressure was soon removed. The market rallied slightly in the last hour, but the close was no more than sieady at the improvement, and very dull. Sales of all stocks listed reached only 186.369, and unlisted 42,000 shares. Final changes are quite irregular, though de-clines are more dimerous tonight, but, with the exceptions of sugar two per cent and Tennessee Coall one per cent lower, the changes are confined Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, February 26—[Special]—Liverpool opened this morning firmer at an advance of 2-64d, but closed quiet with part of the improvement lost. Spot sales 8,000 bales. Manchester reported quiet. Yarns in bnyers' favor. Cloths dull. Our cables attribute this morning's improvement to a slightly better outlook in Manchester. Spinners are reported as being well under contract, and liable at any time to increase their purchases in Liverpool. This market opened at an improvement of some 4@5 points, and some large buying orders were executed at the advance. Receipts, however, both at the ports and interior towns turned out larger than expected, and resulted in a loss of most of the gain, the close being easy. The novement at the ports for the day is 16,994 bales, against 6,501 bales last week and 10,148 bales last year. The total for the week so far is 58,565 bales, and points to at least 80,000 bales, against 92,533 bales last year. This will be much in excess of earlier estimates. Receipts for the day at the interior towns of Augusta, Memphis, St. Louis and Cincinnati aggregate 3,415 bales, against 5,197 bales last year. This is also larger than expected. Our St. Louis correspondents advise us that the unsold stock in that market is only 53,000 bales. The market will require vigorous and "muscular" support to withstand continued heavy receipts. Preparations for the new crop are on an unprecedented scale. Sales of mules and fertilizers are larger than ever before, and the spring promises to be a than ever before, and the spring promises to be a very early one. HUBBARD, PRICE & Co.

The Sun's Cotton Review. NEW YORK, February 26-Futures were buoy-NEW YORK, February 28—Futures were buoyant in the opening hour on a stronger report from Liverpool, where it is said the reports of scarcity of cotton at the south are having effect. The quantity on sale in the American market is now 350,000 bales less than one year ago, and the bulls assert that our markets have already covered themselves, while the bears say, "wait and we shall see." Notices for March were pretty generally stopped in the interest of shippers, who are much better satisfied with the cotton delivered on contracts than they were one year ago. In the ontracts than they were one year ago. In the ast hour the market weakened a little because receipts at the ports had exceeded the estimates.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. [CHICAGO, February 26—A strong undertone was manifested in the wheat market most of the ses-sion, and prices advanced another point or two above extreme outside figures of yesterday. Business was good, though at times there were spells of quietness. The market opened the same as yesterday's close, advanced \( \frac{1}{2} \), then receded \( \frac{1}{2} \), ruled terday's close, advanced ½, then receded ½c, ruled strong, improving ½@½c, receded ½c, closing ½c lower than yesterday. Influences were more or less favorable to the interest of holders. Considerable apprehension was felt in regard to growing wheat on account of the changeable weather. Another cold wave is reported by the signal service over some of the winter wheat districts, though the Ohio valley, where the most damage is feared, has not been reached by savera cold was the area. has not been reached by severe cold weather.

Corn was active and firm, transactions being at slightly higher prices. A very good inquiry existed for both May and July, and as offerings of the same were rather unsteady at times the market ruled stronger. The market opened at yester-day's closing prices, was easy for a time, selling off %@\frac{6}{4}, cold weather creating an easy feeling, became firmer, advanced \frac{1}{4}@\frac{1}{4}c, eased off a little, ruled steady and closed a shade better than yesterday.

Oats were active, stronger and higher, due to the firmness in other grains. There was increased trading in May, one prominent operator being a heavy buyer both here and in New York. Shorts were somewhat scared, and bought freely at an advance of %c. One large trader took a good line. On the advance early buyers began selling and wriger meaded slightly but the wooded solling and on the advance carry outers began sening and prices receded slightly, but the market closed steady at a small gain above yesterday.

Trading in pork was moderate, and the feeling easier. Prices declined 5@7540 on the whole range and closed steady at medium figures. and closed steady at medium figures.

Lard attracted very little attention, and trading was limited. The opening sales were made at about yesterday's closing, but later transactions were at figures more favorable to buyers.

A fairly active trade was reported in short ribs, and the feeling was easier. Prices receded 2½@5c and the market closed steady at medium figures. The following was the range in the leading futures in Chicago today:

The Petroleum Market.

NEW YORK, February 26—The petroleum market ppened weak for March options. Many holders ried to unload on account of the near approach of the delivery period, and broke the price 4c per barrel. There was a slight rally in the last hour, but selling was renewed, and the market closed weak with spot 100% and March 100%.
